HOSPITAL AND PRISON LEFT WITHOUT WATER

Windstorm Shuts Off Supply at Two Ohio Federal Institutions.

By The Associated Press. CHILLICOTHE, O., April 22.—A high windstorm today blew a high tension wire, conveying power from Columbus to Chillicothe, against a transformer station, short circuiting the line leading into the pump station for the federal reformatory and the government veterans' hospital, destroying the machinery and leaving the two institutions without water.

At the present time there are more than 1,500 inmates in the reformatory.

Engineers could make no estimate of how long it will take to replace the machinery.

The Chillicothe Water company, the Mead Paper & Pulp Co., and the Chillicothe Paper company immediately tapped their water mains and were expected to be in a position to provide temporary relief late today.

The two institutions use approximately four million gallons of water a day. The temporary relief will provide only one million gallons, with pumps working full time.

In the meantime water wagons, barrels and tanks were being used to convey water to the institution in order that meals could be prepared.

SCHOOL HEAD TALKS ON SCOUT TRAINING

Featured in Boy Leadership Course by Address of Supt. G. A. Bowman.

George A. Bowman, superintendent of Marion public schools, spoke to the class in Boy Scout Leadership Training at the Legion dug-out last night. This class is being held under the auspices of the Boy Scouts with Arthur S. Brooks, local scout executive in charge.

Bowman spoke to the group on "The Patrol Unit in Scouting." "The Patrol," he said, "is a very important unit of scout organization for it takes the natural boys' group or gang and gives them a definite program under their own leadership. The public schools are in sympathy with the scout movement. Scout masters who devote many hours to the work of their troop deserve the praise and support of the public."

Ray H. Lignaman, secretary of the Upper Sandusky Y. M. C. A. and G. N. Howey of Upper Sandusky attended the meeting. They are working towards organizing a scout troop in that city.

Formal recognition of Spain expected.

U. S. Likely To Open Relations Soon with New Provisional Republic.

WASHINGTON, April 22.—American recognition of the new provisional government of Spain today was expected to follow closely that of Great Britain, France and Germany.

With the announcement by the London foreign office that the British empire was willing to begin diplomatic relations with the new government, it was felt in Washington that the principal nations of Europe and Latin America were now agreed in regarding the change of government as an accomplished fact.

The state department today had not been approached with regard to the appointment of Salvador de Madariaga, noted scholar and author, to be the Spanish republic's first ambassador to Washington.

Although diplomatic usage requires that the name of a new ambassador be submitted to the government to which he is to be accredited for its agreement before the appointment is made public, the minister of state at Madrid already has announced Madariaga's selection for this post.

Revision of tax plan predicted.

loan officials, brokers and other financiers.

The tentative setup proposed a two-mill tax on bank deposits, shares in and capital employed by financial institutions, five mills on investments, stock and capital of dealers in securities, and customers' credits held by brokers, and three mills on all other monies, credits and intangibles.

As this scheduled pertains to the various classes of money interests, it has met with considerable objection, which more often has taken the form of suggestions for an alternate scheme.

When the tax committee opened this week's sessions last night, A. W. Geisinger, former head of the state division of securities, proposed to take the 18 automobile finance companies operating in Ohio out of the classification of financial institutions to be taxed at the rate of two mills.

He suggested that all other taxes on these companies be abolished and that a five-mill tax on gross receipts be levied instead.

The receipts he figured were that Ohio finance companies own only $300,000,000 of the $110,000,000 in vested capital doing business in this state, and that the foreign companies share of taxes. A levy on gross earnings would catch all of them on an equal basis, he said.

Will Hear All Views

Before a final plan on taxing bank deposits and bank and building and loan capital is agreed upon the committee will hear further discussion of the divergent views of financiers.

Numerous corrective changes in the preliminary draft of the bill were proposed last night by M. R. Dickey of the Cleveland Trust company and the committee agreed to consider them.

HEARS PROPOSAL OF GAS COMPANY

Mt. Gilead Council To Consider Contract with Concern.

Special to The Star. MT. GILEAD, April 22—Mt. Gilead, which has been without a gas franchise with any company for several years may soon give a franchise to the Ohio Fuel Gas Co. for a period of 5 or 10 years if negotiations now under way between the company and council are successful. A franchise was submitted by the company through C. F. Bronson of Marion and included in it was a rate contract. Councilmen Payne, Moxier and Dye were appointed by Mayor G. J. Young to consider the franchise and if possible reach an agreement with the company. After consideration the committee submitted a counter proposal to the company in which the rates were reduced considerably especially in the larger amounts of gas used.

The council is willing to grant a five-year franchise but to make it for 10 if an agreement is reached. Several councilmen have stated that even though an agreement is made no franchise will be granted until the outcome of the city's present battle with the company is known. For several years the company has collected rates under bond under the now repealed Pence law. With other cities Mt. Gilead has fought the increased rates.

The gas company has not yet accepted or rejected the proposed franchise and rate contract submitted by the council committee.

Repair of the three filter beds at the sewage disposal plant will be started soon the council passing a resolution of necessity Monday night.

Main street improvement and widening was again discussed by council and the entire council with Mayor Young will have a conference Friday with officials of the state highway department at Columbus in regard to the financial aid expected from the state.

A delayed payment charge of 5 per cent which in no instance shall be less than 10 cents shall be added to above charge if not paid in 10 days after bill for monthly reading has been issued.

In case of decline or failure of supply, domestic consumers shall be given preference over manufacturers or large consumers and the company is required to supply gas in case of one application for every 100 feet.

Mother of Galion Boy Scout To Be Awarded Hero Medal Won by Son

To Be Presented as Result of Lad's Heroic Effort To Save Friend.

GALION, April 22—The Boy Scout hero medal for life-saving awarded to Scout "Billy" Todhunter of Galion will be presented to his mother, Mrs. Ida Todhunter, Sunday afternoon, April 24, at the Senior High school at a general rally of Scouts for the Johnny Appleseed area Court of Honor.

The program will begin at 3 p. m. with a concert by the Mansfield Boy Scout orchestra. This will be followed by the area Court of Honor for the award of star, life and eagle badges.

The presentation of the Boy Scout hero medal will then take place. It will be in charge of the Galion Court of Honor and the presentation will be made by Rev. W. N. Robertson, president of the Court.

A brief address of acceptance will be made by Rev. O. C. Kramer of New Paltz, N. Y., representing Mrs. Todhunter, mother of the Galion Scout who gave his life on Jan. 19, 1930, in a successful effort to save the life of a friend when the ice broke on the reservoir at Galion where many were skating.

The Boy Scout hero medal for this act is awarded by the National Council, Boy Scouts of America, only after the strictest inquiry and the submission of conclusive proof that an act of real heroism was performed. The sworn testimony of eye-witnesses was submitted together with all available facts in complete detail.

Because of this strict inquiry, and insistence on absolute proof, few of the Boy Scout Hero Medals are awarded and their award when made is an outstanding honor.

All Scouts and officials of the Johnny Appleseed area are invited to this meeting and the invitation is also extended to the Scouts and officials of the neighboring Hardin Area with headquarters at Marion.

Indians Join Three-Way Tie For American League Lead

DETROIT RALLY NETS QUARTET OF SCORES, BUT CLEVELAND WINS

Boston Braves Continue Fight To Hold Post in National League Race.

BY HUGH S. FULLERTON, JR., Associated Press Sports Writer.
Bill McKenchie, a successful pilot of baseball clubs for a good many years, seems to be meeting with success in his efforts to build up the Boston Braves, even sooner than he expected. McKenchie took over the Boston management last year under a four year contract, which he said would give him just about enough time to change a losing club into one which stood a good chance for winning. The first eight games this season already have put the Braves into the light of a pennant contender.

Boston now is second in the National league with six victories in their credit and appear to have everything that is needed to go right on winning. Ed Brandt pitched his second victory yesterday, allowing the New York Giants only five hits for a 5 to 1 triumph.

Robins Beaten Again.
Rated as one of the leaders in the pre-season, the Brooklyn Robins took their sixth defeat in seven games yesterday. Jim Elliott, former Brooklyn pitcher, hurled the Phillies to a 7 to 3 victory over his former teammates.

In the American league, the Washington Senators and New York Yankees staged 12 run uprisings to make the day's showing rather one-sided. Washington slammed Boston around for 16 hits and scored ten runs in the first four innings to win 12-3. It took the Yanks only two innings to get the runs off a trio of Philadelphia hurlers and they downed the world's champions, 12-1.

Cleveland Wins 5-4.
Cleveland had a real battle on its hands before it could join the three-way tie for the American league lead by beating out the Detroit Tigers, 5 to 4. With the game apparently won for Cleveland, Jonathan Stone hit his fourth home run of the season for Detroit and brought in three tallies of a four run rally that tied the score. The Indians came back in their half of the inning to get the winning run.

Cold weather in the west stopped the Chicago and St. Louis teams, while Cincinnati and Pittsburgh had no game scheduled.

Four members of Tulane university's 1929 football team hold the record, 43.5, for the 440 football relay event at the Drake relays.

Power of Landis Strengthened by Court Decision

CHICAGO, April 22.—Kenesaw Mountain Landis' absolute dictatorship over organized baseball was strengthened today by federal court recognition.

The recognition was advanced yesterday by Federal Judge Walter Lindley, who not only dismissed a suit for an injunction to curb the commissioner's powers in the case of Outfielder Fred Bennett but recognized him as the "absolute despot" of organized baseball.

"The various agreements between the major and the minor leagues and rules, constituting a complete code for organized baseball in America," ruled Judge Lindley, "disclose a clear intent on the part of the parties to endow the commissioner with all the attributes of a benevolent but absolute despot and all the disciplinary powers of the proverbial pater familias."

Milwaukee, through the St. Louis club of the American league, sought an injunction in the case, when Commissioner Landis ordered St. Louis either to waive Bennett, to the other major leagues, sell him to some other club not connected with the St. Louis club, or to release him outright. St. Louis refused, sending him to the Milwaukee club of which St. Louis is part owner and the commissioner ruled Bennett a free agent under the rule that no player can be controlled for more than two years by one club without an opportunity to play major league baseball.

Judge Lindley upheld Commissioner Landis at every point in the legal fight, the first to confront the commissioner since he took office 10 years ago.

CARDS AT HOME

St. Louis Nationals Open Play with Appropriate Ceremonies Today.

By The Associated Press.
ST. LOUIS, April 22.—The Cardinals made their first appearance of the season here today, with home ceremonies in addition to a ball game on the program.

Raising of the Cardinals' third National league pennant in five years is one of the day's features. Gov. Henry S. Caulfield and Mayor Victor Miller have agreed to try to pitch and endeavor to catch the first ball.

To make the day all the more attractive for the customers, the Cardinals came home in first place with a record of five victories and one defeat this season.

The Pinchurst, N. C., north-south open golf tournament is the oldest of its kind in America.

ST. MARY BALL CLUB HAS OPPORTUNITY TO WIN S. S. LOOP FLAG

Irish, Always a Good Team, Have Stronger Lineup Than Usual.

BY BOB KIRKPATRICK, Sports Editor, The Star.
ALWAYS contenders but never champions would probably come closer to describing the St. Mary recreation ball team than any other single sentence. Ever since the Irish entered the No. 1 Sunday school league they have been perennial contenders for the title but have never possessed quite enough stamina to hurdle every obstacle. Each year the club would get off to a good start but fail in the stretch and fail to crash the gates of pennant-land.

Last year St. Mary landed in second place in the final standings of the No. 1 league. A single game separated the club from the flag winners, Calvary. It took every bit of strength that Calvary possessed to elude the Irish in the pennant race last season. Whether they can do it again this year or whether any club can beat St. Mary out of a pennant is decidedly uncertain.

St. Mary is fortunate this season in being able to start the season with a first class hurler ready for duty. Lack of a good slab artist at the start of the season last year did a lot to keep St. Mary out of the league's post of honor.

Gene Gunder, who promises to be the pitching sensation of Sunday school No. 1 league, if not of the entire city will occupy the mound for the Irish this season. Gunder displayed flashes of rare ability last season and unless something unexpected happens to cripple his salary arm this year opposing batters are going to find it difficult to boost their batting averages against the Irish. Gunder has a fast ball that is the envy of any pitcher in the city and with it he has control. He doesn't need much more.

New Lineup Likely.

Manager Bill Fabian is planning to juggle his lineup of a year ago just seasonally before the opening game on May 12. As it stacks up now John Sheehy will be behind the bat instead of Tommy Andrews who did the backstopping in 1930. Andrews will probably take up the work at third base, although he is being pressed for the job by Paulis. Simmons will be at the initial sack with either Cornely or C. Hogan occupying the second spot on the circuit. J. Lusch is almost a certainty to court at shortstop.

In the outfield, Bob O'Connell will chase balls in left field with Norris or Sheehy in center. Irvin will be in the right field station.

Reserves Are Good.
St. Mary has a host of utility men available for duty although not all of them are of high class caliber. However they are strong enough to give the Irish a lot of reserve strength which is more than a number of other teams in the circuit can boast. Among the utility men are Bud Lewis, Ralph Burke, Van Oss, Ted Fredericks, outfielders, and Wagner, an infielder. J. Hogan will provide the principal relief strength for Gunder on the mound. The Green clad team could use another good relief pitcher. If Gunder can hurl every game in good form it won't be necessary to have any relief hurlers but in case he falters the Irish may find the going tough in spots.

The biggest obstacle in the pennant path of the Irish seems to be their apparent tendency to falter in the pinches. If Fabian can keep the team working a high speed all season without too much friction the team that beats them will be the champions of the No. 1 Sunday school league.

Tomorrow: Epworth No. 1, John H. Clark, manager.

Turf Board Refuses To License Youthful Jockey

By The Associated Press.
CHICAGO, April 22.—Jockey Verlyn Smith, who thrilled Chicago racing crowds last summer by booting home winner after winner, must hang up his saddle until midsummer, at least.

The Illinois Turf association, which cheered his victories until it discovered he was only 15 years old, refused to grant him a rider's license for the 1931 season yesterday, because of his age.

He will be 18, the acceptable age limit, in mid-summer and the association intimated it would gladly extend the required license on his birthday.

'All Through' 2 Years Ago, Pennock Stages Comeback

BY HERBERT W. BARKER

By The Associated Press.
NEW YORK, April 22.—Herb Pennock, the expert agreed two years ago, was "all through." But if you can find any more like him right now there's an opening or two on the New York Yankee's roster.

Stricken with a severe and persistent attack of neuritis in his educated left arm, Pennock wasn't much use to the Yankees in 1929 when for the first time in his career as a Yankee he lost more games than he won. Last year he showed enough improvement to win 11 games while losing seven.

The chances are that Joe M. Carthy, new boss of the Yankees, did not bank very much on the 37-year-old southpaw when he laid his plans for the 1931 campaign, but already Pennock has staged a remarkable comeback and afforded Marse "Joe" with at least a partial solution for his pitching problem.

Pennock, generally rated as the smartest of all present-day pitchers, has started twice in seven games, the Yankees have played so far, gone the route and won both of them, and allowed the opposition a grand total of two runs and 15 hits in 18 innings.

In his first start on April 15, Herb outpitched Horace Lisenbee of the Red Sox to win a 1-0 decision. Yesterday he held the slugging Philadelphia Athletics to seven hits, three of which came in the ninth inning and produced the As' only run, while his teammates poured out a 12-1 decision.

Control has been the principal factor in Pennock's ability to keep going after 18 years in the pros. He knows the batters from "A" to "Z," knows what to pitch to them and what is more, knows that the ball is going to go where he wants it. He has walked only one man in the 18 innings he has pitched this year and that was an intentional pass when the Red Sox proved threatening.

As rain washed out the four-game schedule yesterday, the statistic sticklers got busy and came up with the information that no less than five of the eight clubs in the circuit are hitting at a .301 or better clip, while the others are comfortably close to the magic figure.

RUSSIA HIT IN D. A. R. REPORT

Non-Recognition Urged; Oath of Allegiance Demanded of Teachers.

By The Associated Press
WASHINGTON, April 22—Continued non-recognition of Russia, exclusion of all that nation's products, and legislation to require public school teachers to take the oath of allegiance were demanded in a report prepared by the American Revolution. A committee on national legislation proposed that members "ban from our various households all articles whose production or manufacture is the result of conscript labor."

The report was ready for convention action after an address by Representative Jenkins, Republican of Ohio, promising he would seek immigration law changes in the next congress to exclude communists with other undesirable aliens.

The committee fully endorsed findings of the special house committee that investigated Communist activities. Representative Fish of New York, chairman of the house group, was one of the convention speakers.

In addition to committee reports today's events included a reception by President and Mrs. Hoover, and summaries of state activities of the organization.

Of the teachers' oath legislation, D. A. R. the committee said that some state organizations "were skeptical as to just why we should work for the legislation," and that "with this mental attitude on the part of a leader in the cause, it is of little use to expect widespread cooperation."

GROUP TO DECIDE ON SCHOOL PLANS

Silver Street Community Club Hears Program by Students.

A committee from the Silver Street Community club will meet with the school building committee in the near future to determine where improvements and redecorating will be done this summer. It was announced at a meeting of the club yesterday afternoon at the school.

Three songs, "Hurrah for a Rainy Day," "Robin, Dear" and "The Whippoorwill," were sung by 1A grade. Students of 1B sang "Lady April" and "Robin and the Chicken." Lillian Wilson read a Peter Rabbit story after which grade 2A sang "The Pussy and the Mouse." Readings were given by second grade pupils after which a greeting to the mothers was extended by six girls from 3A grade.

Miss Edith Keeler, art supervisor in the public school gave an interesting talk. Six girls from grade 6B sang "Oh Susanna" and grade 4A sang "Sweet and Clear" and "Secrets of the Sea." Mrs. Katherine Denny Smith, president of the city P. T. A., talked on community club work. Miss Goldus Bolander's room was awarded the banner for having the largest percent of mothers present.

Officers will be elected at a meeting May 12. Mrs. Harvey Wendler, president, closed the meeting with prayer.

STUDIES NEEDS OF GOVERNMENT

Hoover Turns from Politics to Administrative Affairs; May Recommend Legislation.

By The Associated Press
WASHINGTON, April 22—President Hoover is making a thorough study of administrative machinery of the federal government.

With congress out of session for the first time in his two years in office, the chief executive has turned his attention to administrative affairs.

The inspection is being conducted mostly for his own information, but there is a possibility that he may discover the need of legislation to bring several bureaus up-to-date. If so, he will make his recommendations to congress in December.

The President is not conducting his inquiry primarily through cabinet members but is calling in bureau and commission heads.

Cabinet members are consulted at times but most of the work is being done through the "little cabinet," as assistant secretaries and bureau chiefs are called.

Senator Watson's statement recently that "politics is adjourned" has been taken literally at the White House. Except for a few scattered conferences with senators or representatives concerning local patronage, the President has not held a political conference since the breakfast one which resulted in the Indiana senator's assertion.

In addition to his study of the departments Mr. Hoover is devoting considerable time to preparation of speeches he will deliver between now and the middle of June.

BEER WAR BLAMED FOR GANG SLAYING

Aid of Chicago "Public Enemy," Slain as He Flees from Assaultants.

By The Associated Press
CHICAGO, April 22—A South Side beer war was blamed by police today for a new flare-up of gangland shootings, in which Edward Fitzgerald, 31, reputed lieutenant for Frank McErlane, a "public enemy," was slain.

Shotgun and pistol bullets were fired into his body as he attempted to flee from five men who called at a saloon in an automobile and seized him. The killers escaped.

Edward Courtney, Fitzgerald's companion, who also tried to escape from the men, was severely beaten. "Nix, Joey," Fitzgerald is reported to have said when he saw the killers' automobile outside the saloon. "You aren't going to take me for a ride." A moment later, however, he was dead.

Police said they were looking for Joey Gainsky, a member of the gang of Edward "Spike" O'Donnell, South Side beer runner.

Catch of One Fish Is Basis of Hopes for New Industry

By The Associated Press
SANDUSKY, O., April 22—Many great industries have grown from small beginnings, and the catching of one fish from Sandusky bay has brought to watermen here visions of an industry that would equal if not surpass the salmon business of the Columbia river district of the northwest.

The lone fish a steelhead trout, was snared in fishermen's twine off Catawba Island. The steelhead trout is a member of the salmon group, and the specimen taken here was slightly less than two feet long and weighed seven pounds and 14 ounces. It was prepared and sent to Governor White.

City Manager C. Webb Sadler, an ardent fisherman said that some 10 years ago the Castalia Trout club sent to the Pacific coast for steelhead trout eggs, and that the eggs were hatched at the club's hatcheries and the fish later put in Sandusky bay.
The fish caught here was examined by a United States bureau of fisheries expert, who said it was approximately six years old, leaving no doubt in Sadler's mind that it was one of the lot placed in the bay by the club. The expert explained that the steelhead trout lives in cold water, and as the water at this end of the lake is cold, whereas it is considerably warmer at the eastern end, he said the breed undoubtedly would remain in this vicinity.

Sadler sees in the presence of the fish here the potentialities of an industry that in later years may be worth millions of dollars. He is strongly advocating the stocking of Sandusky bay with the fish.

The steelhead trout is silvery in appearance, and its meat is of a yellowish pink hue.

Rev. Fr. W. J. Spickerman Tells Rotarians of Catholic Stand on Birth Control

Birth-control, in one form or another, is a subject which has been discussed in the Catholic Church for many years. At its weekly luncheon, the Rotary club yesterday heard Rev. Fr. W. J. Spickerman of the St. Ignace church, who spoke on the subject of birth control. The priest's views on the subject were in line with the official Catholic position, which is that birth control is a sin. He said that the Catholic Church is not in favor of birth control, and that it is a sin to use any artificial means to prevent conception. Birth Prevention Immoral

"Just as lying is immoral, because it is the use of the faculty of speech to defeat the purpose of the thought and the conviction of the mind, and just as suicide is immoral, because it violates nature's laws of self preservation, which the faculties of man's mind tend to maintain, so birth prevention is immoral, because it is using a faculty of nature of set purpose to render impossible the specific end for which it was given. It is verily and indeed the prevention of the fulfillment of the designs of God."

"Governments will tolerate many things. But one thing they can not afford to tolerate, and that is a propaganda which endangers the very life of the state. It is quite certain that a nation cannot survive if its cradles are empty, or if its families are limited to less than the number of children that are required for national preservation. The voice of history warns us that the nations that practice birth control soon disappear from the stage of life. The birth control of the individual becomes the suicide of the race."

"It is not consoling to America to recall that history does not record a single nation that, a victim of birth control, ever rallied from its ravages. God is not mocked. He sees to it that, as nations and individuals sow, so shall they reap. If they sow birth prevention they reap race suicide and clear the stage for sturdier and more God fearing successors."

"Medical science sounds the same warning to individuals that historical science does to nations. Nations can not mock God with impunity; much less can individuals. It is the experience of those who will not have children when they can that they cannot when they will. A lonely old age, embittered by the reminders of a guilty conscience, is their earthly 'sorrow's crown of sorrows.'"

Economic Grounds

"It is not only on account of the arguments from ethics and scripture that we base our condemnation of birth-control. Either of these sources would be sufficient to convince any right-minded man of the sinfulness of the practice. But we have other grounds on which we base our condemnation and that is the economic argument. Domestic experience and the testimony of all peoples bear out the truth of our contention for it will be generally found that the best, the happiest and the healthiest families are the large or at least normal families. They are the best school for the training and development of children, and parents in the evening of their days have the joy and the consolation of seeing their children to the fourth generation, and of receiving their love and gratitude and, also, if necessary, their help. Where only one or two are allowed, they usually become spoiled children, accustomed to being pampered in the lap of luxury, and no one could be less fitted to do the world's work than those taught to do no work. The spoiled child, trained to look down on those less fortunate, is a misfit in a democracy."

"Hereditarily strongly favors the third, fourth, fifth and subsequent children born to a given couple, rather than the first two who are peculiarly apt to inherit some of the commonest physical and mental defects, so that a population with a low birth rate tends to degenerate. Such stubborn facts as these led the late Theodore Roosevelt, himself a historian of note, to declare, 'The greatest of all curses is the curse of sterility, and the severest of all condemnations should be visited upon wilful sterility. The first essential in any civilization is that the man and the woman shall be the father and mother of healthy children, so that the race shall increase and not decrease.'"

Cites Examples

"It is my impression that the great Irish liberator, Daniel O'Connell, was about the tenth child, and his grandmother had 21 children. Birth control would have deprived America of some of its noblest patriots and greatest leaders, among them Washington and Franklin. As the Rev. Norman Maclean, Presbyterian clergyman, says in an article entitled 'Empty Cradles and Full Garages,' 'If yesterday had been like today, Lord Nelson and Walter Scott and Alfred Nelson and Douglas Haig would not have been born. But in the yesterday the Reformed churches had not learned to compromise.'"

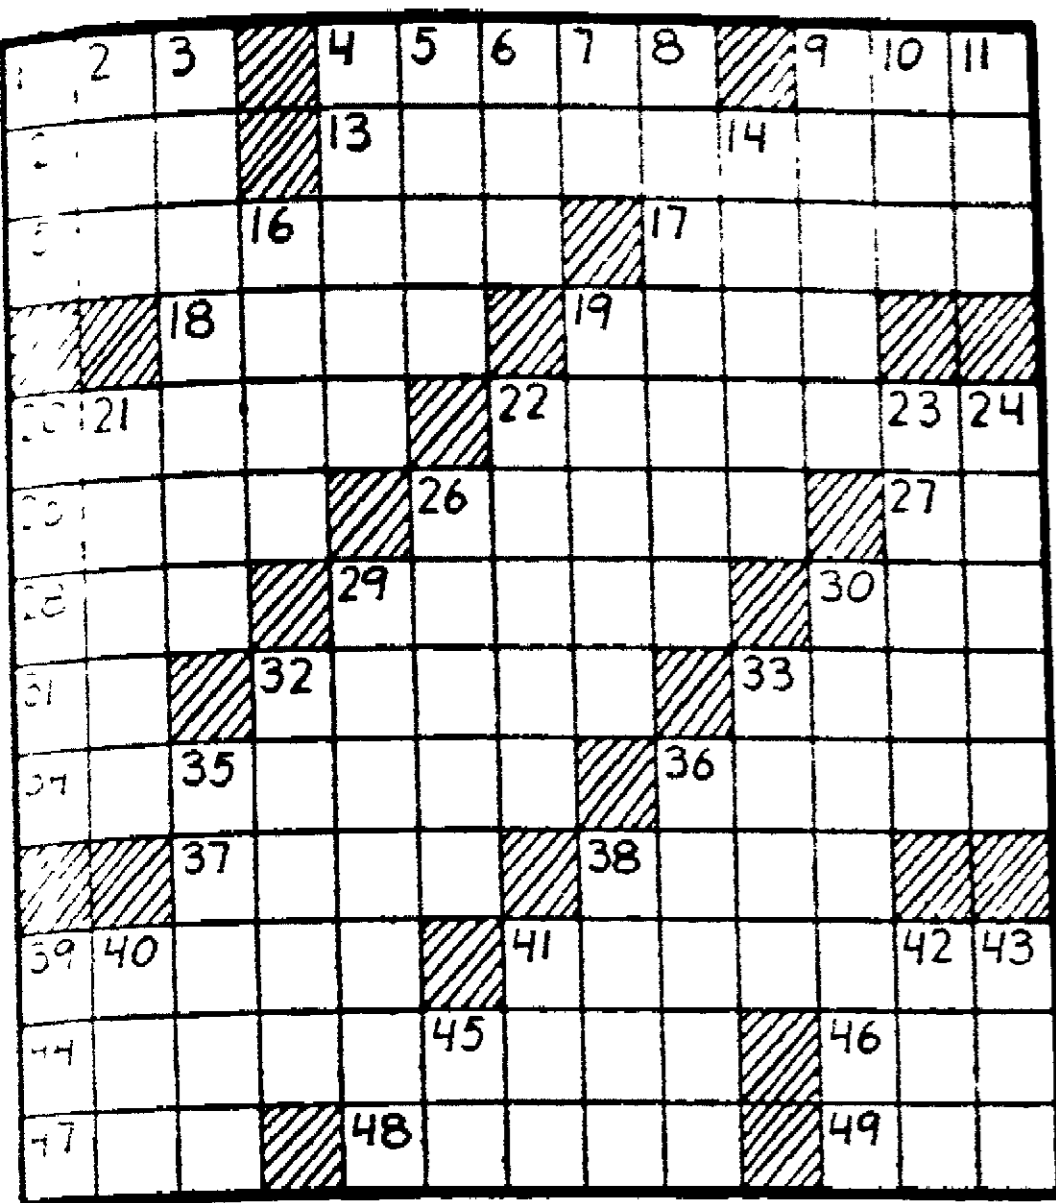

"The Rev. Bascom Anthony, one of the most widely known Methodist ministers in Georgia, says in a recent article in the Macon Telegram, 'If Mrs. Wesley had thought 15 children were as many as the salary of an Episcopal clergyman could support, John would never have been born. Abstinence and self-control is the way in this as in other things.'"

"Does it not seem paradoxical that the twentieth century followers of John Wesley should endorse a practice that would have prevented the birth of their founder and most probably also the establishment of their church?"

If people are so cold-hearted that they are not interested in your troubles you don't care to talk to them at all.

Mad Pursuit

BY JESSIE DOUGLAS FOX

(Copyright, 1931, Jessie Douglas Fox)

SYNOPSIS

Although pretty Nora Lake loves her artist father, she is distressed at their ceaseless quest of new scenes. "Oh, Julian, let's go home," she exclaims when he tells her that they are going to the Tyrol, leaving behind the Italian villa Mrs. Nevers has lent them, rent-free. Protesting when he tells her to borrow money for household expenses from the painter, Nicholas Thayer, her guest, Nora is further dismayed at her father's sly hint that she marry Thayer. Oddly, as she recalls, five years before she had met Jonathan Thayer, a youth of 20, who had strongly impressed her but Nicholas Thayer she dislikes from the first. When she goes to serve his breakfast, he tells her rather harshly, that he is leaving.

Curious Nora

NORA did not answer him at once, though speculating why this strange man had decided to leave The Villa Rosa with its pleasant old rooms was not comfortable enough, then, for him. "I thought I could work here," Nicholas continued, "but it's no good. I'll have to get out of Florence. Soon I'll be sunning myself and talking about the great things I shall do some day."

She read contempt for her father in the words. She knew too well his laziness, but his very weakness enriched her sympathy. "Are you going to the Tyrol?" she asked, the thought darting through her mind that this might account for her father's sudden change of plan. "I'm going home."

On the moment he seemed changed; strange still, but the gray eyes she had thought cold and piercing she saw now were suffering.

"I want to go home," Nora said. She sat down on a high-backed chair as though at any moment she might spring up and dart off.

"Why don't you?"

"Julian can't get on without someone to look out for him."

His lips twisted in an amused smile as though the idea of her looking out for her father was as absurd as it was pathetic.

"You've been lucky," Nicholas said with asperity, "most people would give their boots to travel about as you have done. For three years, isn't it?"

"I've travelled ever since I was born. But you can't live on scenery forever," Nora ended simply.

"Look here, you can get what you want by wanting it enough. Have you got what you want?"

"God, no!"

His violence startled her. He stood, legs apart, looking at her with unkind, drawn brows.

"Neither have I."

He was disarmed for the first time. His face was quite different when he smiled there was a kind of pity in it that changed it magically.

"Heart of a Wife"

—BY ADELE GARRISON

Madge Extracts a Promise.

"IT'S JUST this," I said, ostensibly, answering Harry Underwood's query, but really addressing Mary and Marion. "Hank and Bill are terribly sensitive about this incident of the scorched trousers—boys of that age are so self-conscious, you know—and it's going to make them most unhappy if they think you've found out about it. They evidently wanted to be dressed in their best ready to receive you, and they were panic stricken when Hank accidentally scorched his only clean pair of white flannels while pressing them."

"It's a wonder he didn't burn himself and the house up," Mary said. "I didn't suppose he knew one end of a flatiron from the other."

"I don't think he did," I said smiling. "But Dicky thought it would be a good thing for them to learn. He pressed the coats for them, and left them to do the others."

"If that isn't the Dicky-bird for you," Lillian commented with the exasperation at Dicky's follies which either he nor I resent from her. "Leaves a couple of tyros with a job like that! But of course he's making up for it royally. That's the Dicky-bird also."

"Yes," I smiled. "He's rushing them off for Southampton, all ready for the evening except that they're wearing the trousers to their street suits. When they come back, if they can get fitted, they'll be the last word sartorially. But I don't want even the quiver of an eyelash from any of you to betray that you've guessed anything. Accept whatever excuse they give for not being here—"

Keeping the Secret

"Which will be an artistic job," Harry Underwood interrupted. "I know the Dicky-bird's capabilities for tall and fancy—"

"It's a mutual admiration society, his wife commented slyly. "Don't mind his interrupting you. Madge, I haven't read him his chapter from the etiquette book yet today, and he's apt to get a bit rusty whenever I omit it. And on behalf of myself and my husband," she waved her hand in a grandiloquent gesture. "I promise that no beans shall be spilled by the senior Underwoods. As for these two frivolous young sisters, they'll have to make their own bargain with them."

The girls giggled, then looked at each other in puzzled fashion.

"I can't see what they're so fussed about," Marion said. "Ronald or his chums wouldn't mind anybody's knowing a thing like that. Up at their place, the boys were always pressing clothes and forgetting the iron and burning them. Ronald went around with the print of the flatiron on the side of his trousers' leg for two evenings because he had scorched the last pair he had. Home—the rest were all at the cleaners. We had great fun about it. He called it his iron triangle, and it beat an iron cross any day as a decoration."

"If Hank and Bill were a few years older, they wouldn't care either, dear," I told her. "But the fact remains that they do, so I want you both to promise me that you won't let them see you know anything about this incident."

"Oh! sure," Mary agreed carelessly, and Marion nodded her head vigorously. "We'll sweep all the dust under the bed and keep it there. I can see, though, where we've got to educate those kids. But hello! Marion! here's a thought. You can't tell me they're putting on all this dog on account of me, their one and only sister. They'd come down to dinner in their bathrobes if I were the only girl around. No, Marion, it's the old 'sit-up-and-take notice' thing. They're getting it early and you're the only other girl in sight, so it certainly must be you." Come along, and I'll tell you up ready for a killing. Oh, I forgot. I'm so terribly sorry, Auntie Madge. You and Aunt Katherine want to see our things, don't you?"

"Just Naturally Leaky"

"That can wait a few minutes," I told her. "Take them all up to your room and we'll come on an inspection tour after you're dressed for dinner."

"That's splendid," she said, then, as she and Marion went through the door, she threw back a warning.

"You'll have to cork up tight, and then seal the cork with the heaviest wax you have. That lad's a regular sieve. He tells every thing, does not mean to always. He's just naturally leaky."

"I know," I said a bit despondently. "But I'll do my best."

"Good hunting!" she replied with a little laugh and then the two girls were gone, and I was free to put the question which had been in my mind ever since that nap in the hammock to find that they had gone to Southampton.

"Did you post any mail when you went to Southampton?" I asked, trying to put the question carefully. But my pulses were pounding with anxiety to know the whereabouts of the letter I had written to Jack Bickett.

"I had such a brother once," he said, studying her curiously. "London about five years ago. 'He isn't dead,' she breathed. 'I believe he's still alive,' he said indifferently. 'He must be married by this time,' she tried to say with a casual indifference. But to her confusion the blood began to sting her cheeks. 'It is a habit the young seem to have. And by this time—he must be.' Her finger tips were icy. She had to force the words out. 'Have you seen him lately?' 'I haven't seen him lately,' he said without interest. 'She could not say another word. He walked away from her. She was startled almost beyond her power of endurance. 'Well,' he said smiling down at her, 'say good-by to your father for me. I don't like to say good-by.' She did not want him to go but she was not experienced enough to know how to make him stay. She was a little angry too that she had told him about herself, and that he put her back. And she was dumber of curiosity to know more about him. She stood up and went over to the blind that she had tried to open that morning and wrenched at it with fury. Thayer came over to her and leaning out thrust his hand in her hair and creaking her in Europe, where she had no background, no money, nothing but a kind of every charm for her whole fortune?"

Nora said suddenly, "I met someone once named Thayer."

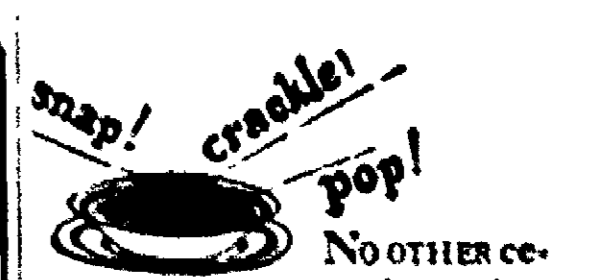

"There are several of the name," he said dryly.

"His name was Jonathan. He was tall and very fair."

its half-filled bottles with their Italian labels. There was no disinfectant. When she went back he had wrapped his hand in his handkerchief. "Have you run cold water over it?" He was smiling cynically. "I came through the war unscratched, a pin prick's not going to do me in now," he said. "Will you tell your father for me that I won't see him again?" He turned abruptly and ran upstairs. She stood listening to the sounds of his packing. For the first time a crazy restlessness beset her own spirit. She wanted to rush upstairs and tumble things into her own bags and be off. "I hope I never see him again!" Nora thought.
